

Wiscasset Public Library Newsletter September 2021

*Autumn carries more gold in its pocket than all the other seasons.
~ Jim Bishop*

Director's Note

Have you heard of the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) of 2021? ARPA supplied the stimulus money paid out to individuals during COVID-19. It also provided money to states, in order to fund economic relief and development at the local level. The really great news is that the state of Maine has decided that libraries deserve help in serving the public.

I have put a lot of consideration into determining what could help WPL patrons the most. In the end, the answer was really pretty simple. All through COVID libraries and patrons have been extremely concerned about access. Access to employment. Access to our families. Access to research. Access has been the hot topic. To that end, WPL has worked to better secure and supply access for you.

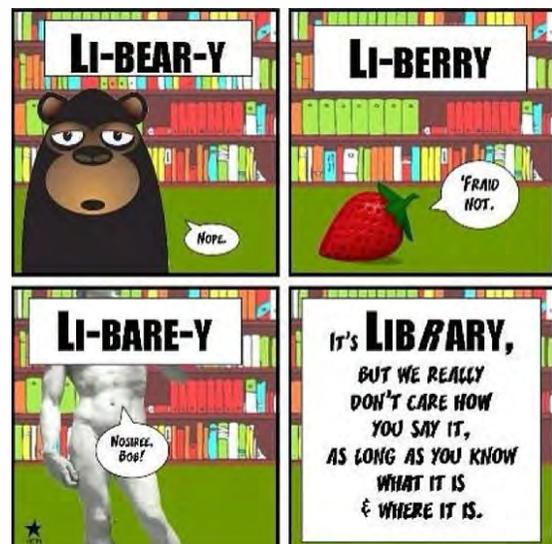

Six new public access computers have replaced the very old, tired machines. The new computers are more energy efficient, run faster and have cameras and speakers built in for ease of online meetings. Bring your paperwork, your headset or earbuds and go to your meeting in the comfort of this library. Whether you are job searching, in a business meeting, or just talking to family across the country, you can do it at the library without worrying about data usage or bandwidth.

More good news. Within the next year, libraries in Maine will be upgraded to 10G networks to better serve our online users. Maine's libraries care about Maine people and their needs. Thank you for being here for us so we can be here for you.

Can You Identify These Buildings?

As many of you know, the Library staff is in the process of digitizing all the images in the Archives. We have processed over 1,300 images to date. We are writing definitions and naming all images so they can be easily located when launched on the Maine Digital Archives. You can help with this process. There are a few images that do not have clear titles on them and we are unsure of the exact names of the businesses or homes depicted. The challenge is obvious. Who can name the building/s? In this first picture, the old wooden bridge over the Sheepscot is clearly visible and there is a crockery and glass ware business to the right. Bragging rights go to the first person to fill in the business name. Email us at wpl@wiscasset.lib.me.us or call 207-882-7161 and, with your permission, we will share your brilliance with the newsletter readers in October.

Recommended: The Paris Apartment

New to our shelves: The Paris Apartment by Kelly Bowen was recommended by a patron and described as "un-put-downable."

2017, London: When Aurelia Leclaire inherits an opulent Paris apartment, she is shocked to discover her grandmother's hidden secrets—including a treasure trove of famous art and couture gowns. One obscure painting leads her to Gabriel Seymour, a highly respected art restorer with his own mysterious past. Together they attempt to uncover the truths concealed within the apartment's walls.

Paris, 1942: The Germans may occupy the City of Lights, but glamorous Estelle Allard flourishes in a world separate from the hardships of war. Yet when the Nazis come for her friends, Estelle doesn't hesitate to help those she holds dear, no matter the cost. As she works against the forces intent on destroying her loved ones, she can't know that her actions will have ramifications for generations to come.

Set seventy-five years apart, against a perilous and a prosperous Paris, both Estelle and Lia must summon hidden courage as they navigate the dangers of a changing world, altering history—and their family's futures forever. (Amazon)

Large Print: Freedom Farm

Jennifer Neves' Freedom Farm is a collection of short stories that depicts the authenticity of family and is a meditation on the nature of memory itself. Jennifer's humorous and inquisitive essays about growing up and raising a family in rural Maine show how her memories of her early life continue to guide and shape who she is.

The author says, "When I began this project, I imagined myself setting out to capture the essence of my early life, the bones of family lore, and the values that shaped who I am and who I will ultimately become. As I wrote, some stories moved easily from start to finish. There was a path, and events traveled upon it as though they were blind to the possibility of anything else. Then, there were some stories that seemed to grind as stones caught in a gear, that turned on themselves, tangled, and frustrated. Through this process, I have come to understand that to appreciate the fullness of any one person's journey is to acknowledge there is no one story to describe it. In fact, there is no number of stories that do us humans justice. We are infinitely complicated creatures, connected to our own stories, but also to the places where our stories intersect with others' - family, friends, and even strangers. It's easy to lose patience with this mess, to give up believing that, in the end, the stories we tell and retell might bring us closer to knowing our true selves. But maybe this idea of seeking resolution in any form is too tidy, and more important, too little to ask of good stories."

New in YA: King of Scars

New York Times #1 best-selling author and "master of fantasy" Leigh Bardugo continues to enthrall with her latest tale from the Grishaverse. King of Scars is set in Ravka, three years after the war.

The dashing young king, Nikolai Lantsov, has always had a gift for the impossible. No one knows what he endured in his country's bloody civil war—and he intends to keep it that way. Now, as enemies gather at his weakened borders, Nikolai must find a way to refill Ravka's coffers, forge new alliances, and stop a rising threat to the once-great Grisha Army.

Yet with every day a dark magic within him grows stronger, threatening to destroy all he has built. With the help of a young monk and a legendary Grisha general, Nikolai will journey to the places in Ravka where the deepest magic survives to vanquish the terrible legacy inside him. He will risk everything to save his country and himself. But some secrets aren't meant to stay buried—and some wounds aren't meant to heal. [excerpt from book jacket]
